Dr. Helland Thinks Pittsburgers Have Been a Little Sordid.

OTHER SOCIETY EVENTS OF YESTERDAY

A blaze of light and a burst of melody issued from the old Thaw mansion last evening every time the massive doors were opened to admit the distinguished guests who lent their presence to the reception with which the Academy of Art and Science of Pittsburg celebrated its installment in its Historical and interesting to commend with, the magnificent stone building on Fifth street was rendered additionally so for the reception last evening by the elaborate displays made by the various societies now claiming a home in the grand old structure, and in an atmsosphere of intellectuality and congeniality mingled the cultured, refined, scholarly and learned people of the two cities, an aggregation that would certainly have delighted the great philanthropist had he been living, as he was a learned and scientific gentleman, and one that would prove the wisdom of his family in allowing by their liberal and favorable financial terms the transfor-

as gracefully as if especially designed for them the apartments assigned to their use. THE ART DEPARTMENT.

On the main floor, in the handsome, spacious drawing room, with its velvety carpet and elegant crimson hangings, the pictures of the Pittsburg Art Society were hung for the reception, and will be for the future meetings of the society, as it is to be their headquarters, with the understanding that the room is at the disposal of any society in the academy for special events outside of the usual routine meetings.

Among the artists represented in last evening's exhibit of pictures that lined the walls and excited universal admiration were George Hetzel, Joseph R. Woodwell, John W. Bentty, A. Bryan Wail, D. B. Walkley

Across the hall, handsomely fitted up as a reception room, is the dining room of former days, the mammoth carved sideboard of which, for last evening, was banked with the most luxuriant and rarest of plants and

The entire front of the second floor is alloted to the engineers of Western Pennsylvania, and a very interesting display was made by the society, including a fine col-lection of Mannesmann tubes and the Thielen exhibit of articles made by the Darby process of recarburization, both of which were presented to the society at the recent international meeting.

The rear room is occupied by the Architectural Society, and the walls are filled with illustrations of the granite and stone buildings that owe their existence to the brains of this society. On the third floor, the amateur photographers, the microscopical and the botanical societies are dom-iciled in beautifully carpeted, nicely arranged apartments, each of which abounds | night editorship of THE DISPATCH to acthe walls of the microscopists' rooms being hung with drawings and plates of insects and sections of insects highly magnified, to the gentleman's sterling character and begins several fine steel engravings of distinguished investigators in micro

Sloping racks around three sides of the room are fitted up to hold the display of of honor, and, figuratively speaking, handed specimens and were filled with a very interesting collection, among which were his thanks briefly and in an unpremeditated several cases of butterflies from the collection of Rev. W. J. Holland. Microscopes are arranged with a view to their successful use, and two very ancient ones are exhibited as curios. In the botanical apartment is a large herbarium case containing about 3,000 mounted plants and a large collection of mosses and licheus. Portraits of Dr. Asa friends in the Gas City. Gray and other eminent botanists are hung moon the walls and a collection of mineral caned by Prof. Guttenberg, of the High School, occupies a prominent place.

The Photographic Society has adorned its room with a collection of pictures taken by the members of the society, some notably fine ones made by Mr. Thomas Kennedy, of New Brighton, Mr. W. S. Bell and Mr. W. S. Clow, of Pittsburg, and last evening exhibited a wonderfully pretty collection of insparencies, cleverly shown by electric

The reception given was informal, and the guests were all made heartily welcome by an address delivered by the President of the Academy, Rev. W. J. Holland, who said,

DE. HOLLAND CRITICISES. Pittsburgers as a people have prided them-selves upon being what they love to call them-selves, "practical men," Outsiders have some-times perhaps thought them, too, "just a wee-bit" sorded. But better days have come, and within the past five or six years we have wit-tnessed a most magnificent development among blic spirit, which is destined to leave its lasting impress upon this community and upon our land, as we hope. It is an indirect re-sult of this change in the popular sentiment that we are met here to-night under these easant auspices.

The utility of such an organization as ours in a community like this cannot be estimate We have a function to perform in the direc-tion of concating the masses of the people This may be accomplished in various ways This may be accomplished in various ways, among the means which may be employed is that of spreech. It is one of the duties of our academy to provide for the popularization of knowledge by establishing a series of lectures upon art and science, to which the people shall have access. And I would advocate the employment for this purpose, if possible, one of the most noted scientific men of the day.

We have a duty to perform in the collection of objects of scientific interest and artistic of objects of scientific interest and artistic meril, and in their preservation. In other words we have a work to do in building up a museum. We are only in our merest infancy, but we are already beginning to discover that this building will very soon be too small for the dation of the multitude of i teresting and valuable objects which are being placed in our custodianship. With a flow of wit and an invitation to all "ologists" to form societies and enter the academy, the address was concluded. The Academy of Science and Art of Pitts-burg numbers 25 members. Its officials are as follows: Rev. W. J. Holland, President; Geo. B. Macbeth, First Vice President; John A. Brotherhood Engineers Speak of the Good Influence of Christianity The Pennsylvania Railroad Department of the Y. M. C. A. tendered a reception last night to the visiting delegates of locomotive engineers and their wives. It was held in the building on the corner of Penn and Seventh street, and an audience of 150 more than could be seated was present, while 300 people were turned away for want of room. Mr. Robert Pitcairn presided, and short ad-dresses were made by him, Mr. Kirk Porter and Chief P. M. Arthur, of the Brother-

Mr. Porter welcomed the delegates to the association rooms in the name of the President of the Y. M. C. A., who is out of the city, and in the name of the more than 2,000 members of it. He then spoke briefly of the close relationship of the Association and the Brotherhood, that time will demonstate the virtue of a Christion life in their work and a consequent higher appreciation by

Mr. Arthur spoke of his life as a Christian for the past 30 years, and said he was glad to address his comrades in that building. He spoke of the good influence on workmen to have a Christian man among them, on the road or in the shop, and said he could remember when he first embraced Christianty, how he had been called "The Dominie." "But for 30 years, though sorely tempted, and many of you delegates know how sorely, not one profane word has passed my lips."

He appealed to them all to identify themfavorable financial terms the transformation of the old homestead into an Academy of Sciences and Arts, and the materialization of an idea long contemplated by leaders in the artistic and scientific circles.

A CHURCH ENTERTAINMENT.

Music and Delicacies Furnished by Shady Avenue Baptists.

Supper from 5:30 to 8:30, a concert from 8:30 to 9:15; this announced the programmes for the entertainment held at the Shady Avenue Baptist Church last evening, the ladies in charge having displayed rare foresight and judgment in arranging that their guests should first be made happy with the oyster and accompanying delicacies, thus insuring perfect enjoyment of the musical programme which so frequently comes first, and seems so unnecessarily long, as the fragrance of steaming coffee assails the nostrils of the listeners.

For the musical programme had been selected such talent as the Arion Quartet, selected such talent as the Arion Quartet, consisting of Messrs. C. C. Rinehart, first tenor, E. E. Rinehart, second tenor, A. C. Fraser, first bass; C. F. Harris, second bass; Mr. David J. Davis, Miss Edith Marthens, Mr. Fay Lloyd, Mrs. B. Baumgardner, Miss Hattie Jones, Mr. C. F. Harris, Mr. F. C. Brittain, Mr. David Mc-Frederick. The proceeds of this entertainment will be applied toward the furnishing of the church in such way as the committees. of the church in such way as the committees may desire and direct.

have reason to believe they can be again in some years.

We've opened this week forty new styles in Boys' and Children's Suits, and extremely pretty and attractive styles they are. Never was there so much thought and attention given to clothing for the little ones as to-day, and in such a stock as we show you'll see the brightest and best ideas perfectly worked out. But because the garments are fancy, you'll not be asked a fancy price by any means. In addition to offering some very attractive goods at close figures, we are giving two presents which are affording universal satisfaction. In our Men's Department, with every sale of $10 or over, a beautiful Picture goes, framed and all ready to hang; and with every sale of $2 and up in Boys' and Children's Clothing, a large and finely Illustrated Book. There'll not be a more opportune moment than NOW to buy what you need for Fall and Winter.

300 to 400 Market St.

There's a time for everything and the time to purchase at these stores is right now. Fancy prices never obtained a foothold here, and nowhere in the two cities are such extraordinary values offered in seasonable garments. Take Jackets and Capes for instance. Purchasing these goods before manufacturers thought of an advance, we are in a position to undersell all competitors. If you doubt this statement just compare our prices with those of other dealers, It will be money in your pocket to do so. Visitors to the city can make expenses by taking advantage of this opportunity to purchase their winter outfits at 25 per cent less than they are selling elsewhere. Figures are convincing, and we would ask you to note carefully the following: HERE IS THE PROOF.
